

Report on “Collection and Donation Drive”

Date: 17th October to 16th November 2025

Venue: MNIT Campus

Organizing Body: National Service Scheme (NSS), MNIT Jaipur

Distinguished Presence: NSS Volunteers and Parashraya Foundation Volunteers

The National Service Scheme (NSS) unit of MNIT Jaipur successfully organized a comprehensive Collection and Donation Drive. This sustained initiative was designed to promote the spirit of service, responsible resource management, and social contribution within the institute community.

The drive focused on gathering essential items and reusable goods to benefit local underprivileged communities. The overarching goal was to reinforce civic responsibility and promote a culture of environmental mindfulness and active charity through a focused, continuous effort, thereby translating the commitment to service into a meaningful societal impact.

Objectives

- To foster civic responsibility through active community service.
- To promote sustainability by conserving and redistributing reusable resources.
- To provide material support to local underprivileged communities.
- To encourage youth participation in sustained social outreach.
- To minimize waste by extending the lifespan of usable items.

Event Details

- Phase I: Collection (October 17 – October 31): The drive commenced on October 17 and concluded on October 31, encouraging the campus community to contribute essential items and reusable goods over a sustained fifteen-day period.
- Phase II: Segregation (November 5 & November 9): Following the collection, the donated material underwent a meticulous sorting process on November 5 and November 9. Items were carefully segregated based on critical parameters, including wearable sizes, intended use, age group, and the specific necessities of the different age categories, ensuring the aid was optimally prepared for distribution.
- Phase III: Distribution (November 16): The culmination of the effort took place on November 16, when the segregated materials were directly distributed to the underprivileged populations. The target beneficiaries were the needy individuals residing in vulnerable locations near Amrudo ka Bagh, City Park & SFS Circle, effectively translating the spirit of service into direct, meaningful social impact.

Volunteer and Community Engagement

The Collection and Donation Drive witnessed enthusiastic involvement from 20 dedicated student participants and NSS volunteers. The core NSS team members efficiently managed the comprehensive event logistics, which included setting up collection points, coordinating outreach, and meticulous execution of the segregation process on November 5 and 9. Their consistent commitment and diligence in sorting and preparing the materials, followed by the direct distribution on November 16, strongly reflected the foundational principle of “Not Me, But You”, which is the cornerstone of the NSS philosophy. Their collaborative effort ensured the timely and impactful success of this social outreach initiative.

Outcomes

- Provided tangible material support to identified underprivileged communities.
- Instilled a strong sense of civic duty and empathy among student volunteers.
- Promoted sustainable practices through the efficient conservation and redistribution of usable goods.
- Successfully reduced waste by extending the lifespan of essential items.
- Enhanced the NSS unit's commitment to continuous social outreach and community welfare.

Conclusion

The Collection and Donation Drive organized by the NSS unit of MNIT Jaipur was a resounding success, both in terms of dedicated student engagement and significant community impact. The active participation of the volunteers and the generosity of the campus community translated directly into tangible material support for those in need. The event served as a significant demonstration of MNIT Jaipur's commitment to social outreach and sustainable civic responsibility, reinforcing the vision of service inherent in the NSS philosophy and contributing effectively to local community welfare.
